On Time, Lower Cost NNS Completes South Dakota's AMR Module

More than 100 shipbuilders were recognized May 6 for completing South Dakota's (SSN 790) Auxiliary Machinery Room (AMR) on time and 10 percent below cost for the same work on the last boat. The module is the 17th consecutive Virginia-class AMR that the team has completed on time or ahead of schedule.

"This is a huge accomplishment for Newport News Shipbuilding," said Rob Austin, construction director. "The fact that the team has been able to successfully transition into the two submarine per year build schedule is amazing. The team has been exemplary in looking for different ways to speed up the build process while maintaining first-time quality."

At the end of Austin's remarks, he asked the team to applaud themselves and shake hands with each other. "This accomplishment was a team effort," said Austin. "Thank those around you and let them know that you care about them and their safety."

Lt. Steven Kemper, SUPSHIP, was in attendance and thanked the shipbuilders for their hard work. "Delivering 17 AMRs on time is a testament to your outstanding craftsmanship," he said.

"Big E" Returns to Birthplace - Dry Dock 11

On May 2, USS Enterprise (CVN 65) was moved from Pier 2 to her original birthplace, Dry Dock 11. Newport News employees will continue the defueling process in the dry dock under the current inactivation contract.

Six tugboats guided the ship about one mile to its new location. More than 200 shipbuilders assisted with the ship's relocation, a two-and-a-half-hour effort. Work will continue in the dry dock until the fall of 2016.

"Our shipbuilders and Navy partners continue to work closely as we accomplish this truly unique contract," said Chris Miner, vice president of In-Service Aircraft Carrier Programs. "Our shipbuilders' slogan for the inactivation of the USS Enterprise is 'Honor a Legend.' The pride the shipbuilder and Navy team have in being part of this legendary ship's history is demonstrated every day as they safely complete each step of this challenging work."

May is National Electrical Safety Month

Newport News Shipbuilding's Electrical Department (X31) is taking part in National Electrical Safety Month by raising awareness about electrical safety. The department has placed posters and banners around the yard from Pier 2 to Dry Dock 12 and at each of the nine turnstiles in honor of the month.

"Raising awareness about electrical hazards is the key to reducing home electrical fires, injuries and even death," said X31 Trade Director David Batdorf. "Whether employees are at home or at work, electrical safety is important at all times. Our goal is to educate employees on small things that they can do to improve the electrical environment around them."

The department also handed out lanyards and released a short video that address's the problems that we specifically see in the yard themed "Why I work Safe" to help spread the word about electrical safety. Watch videos highlighting Electrical Safety Month on Yardnet.

NEW! Watch a LIVE Webcast of the Indiana Keel Laying Ceremony

On Saturday, May 16, Newport News Shipbuilding will lay the keel for submarine Indiana (SSN 789). The webcast will begin at 11 a.m. and will be broadcasted at huntingtoningalls.com/ssn789. During the ceremony, NNS welder Heather Johnson (X18) will weld Ship's Sponsor Diane Donald's initials into a steel plate that will be later be permanently affixed to the submarine.

Following the ceremony, the entire webcast will be available for viewing on the website.

The first super carrier powered by nuclear reactors, USS Enterprise is also the first to undergo an inactivation, which includes defueling the ship's eight reactors and preparing the hull for its final dismantlement.

USS Enterprise was built at Newport News and joined the Navy's fleet in 1961. The ship aided in the Cuban Missile Crisis and operations Enduring Freedom and New Dawn, as well as naval maritime security operations.

CMSD Recognized for Eco-Friendly Practices

Continental Maritime of San Diego has been recognized by the Industrial Environmental Association for its environmental stewardship. The association presented the shipyard with a Pioneer Award in April, commemorating the facility's proactive sustainability program, which has led to CMSD becoming the first "zero discharge" shipyard in the United States.

"It's great to know that Continental Maritime is dedicated to continual improvement and is reminded of some great achievements, like being the first zero discharge shipyard in the country," said April McGinley, an environmental supervisor at CMSD. "We are committed to keeping our community clean and safe, for both our neighbors and the wildlife of San Diego. As a member of the Industrial Environmental Association, CMSD makes environmental stewardship a top priority."

CMSD has worked to eliminate all discharge from its facility for more than a decade. Operating under a National Pollution Discharge Elimination System Permit, CMSD committed to becoming a zero discharge facility, eliminating the discharge of storm water, air conditioning condensate, boiler condensate, pipe and tank hydrostatic discharge water, and more. In 2004, the San Diego Regional Water Control Board inspected the facility's discharge elimination system and confirmed that all point source discharges were eliminated, making CMSD the nation's first zero discharge shipyard. By being discharge free, CMSD has an annualized energy savings of approximately $90,000.

In addition to addressing discharge, CMSD has taken steps to limit its use of electricity and hazardous materials and has promoted recycling throughout its facility. The company replaced light fixtures with more energy-efficient lighting, leading to a 59 percent reduction in electricity use annually. To cut down on hazardous waste and emissions, leadership banned overboard blasting and coasting and now uses natural gas and electric forklifts. In 2014, the company recycled 594 tons of cardboard, paper, wood, plastic, blast grit, metal and electronic waste, representing 62 percent of the facility's waste once transferred to a landfill.

NOTICE

Don't Become Victim of a Scam

Over the past few months, Newport News Shipbuilding employees have been targeted for a scam of gaining money under false pretenses.

The scam begins with an individual approaching an employee and starting a friendly conversation about working at the shipyard and how they are currently stranded. The individual (sometimes two individuals) ask for a specific amount of money needed to get their vehicle working again. The individual then gives them a name of an active NNS employee and a correct phone number for that employee.

If the employee decides to help the pretending shipbuilder, and then tries to regain the borrowed money by contacting the person from the information given, the person called will not know of the incident and more than likely will have received several other calls of that nature.

Turn to p. 4 to view a list of tips to help you not fall victim to a scam.

Master Shipbuilder and Installation Machinist Herbert Young (X43) believes that the team has been able to remain successful on each structure due to constant communication. "Communication plays an important role in what we do," he said. "We are constantly communicating between each other and between teams. Whether we're letting each other know about the status of the AMR or a new idea we have to improve our processes – communication has kept us on track."

X33 Painter Karisten Frazier said that teamwork has also played a major role in the team's success. "Everyone looks out for each other," she said. "When we see something wrong, we let our teammate(s) know. The teamwork mindset has definitely worked to our benefit."

X31 Apprentice Craft Instructor Carmelo Collazo has been helping train and coach apprentices building the AMR structure for the past year. "My job is very rewarding because I'm able to see the progress of the apprentices," he said. "They have so much pride in their work and are always trying to find ways to make improvements or better themselves."
