

Warner Successfully Completes Initial Sea Trials

John Warner (SSN 785) successfully completed its initial sea trials on Saturday, May 23. Sea trials are aggressive operational tests that demonstrate the submarine's capabilities at sea. John Warner, the first Virginia-class submarine to be named for a person.

"Alpha sea trials represent the first underway test of the quality of the craftsmanship that went into the construction of this great vessel and the skill of the crew that operates her," said Jim Hughes, vice president of Submarines and Fleet Support. "Both the ship and the crew performed incredibly well, resulting in extremely successful trials that enable the ship to advance directly into its next set of tests. The John Warner is now well on its way to being another successful and early Virginia-class delivery."

All systems, components and compartments were tested during the trials. The submarine submerged for the first time and operated at high speeds on the surface and underwater. John Warner will undergo several more rounds of sea trials before delivery to the Navy by Newport News Shipbuilding.

Production Refueling and Nuclear Support Division Presents Safety Trophies

On May 11, the Production Refueling and Nuclear Support division presented quarterly safety trophies to division leaders whose crew went above and beyond to improve safety in their work area. This is the second year the division has presented trophies recognizing safety efforts of “standout” teams and leaders.

The trophies were presented by Mary Cullen, Production Refueling and Nuclear Support director.

The “Foreman” trophy was given to April Barnes and the “Team” trophy was awarded to Dennis Grady, Paul Winfield, George Gallman, Eldrin Wallthall and Brandon Greenhow for cleaning up a warehouse that had areas that were unsafe due to tripping and striking hazards. The team worked with Maintenance Department (O43) to clean the area, get the lights repaired and the heat working.

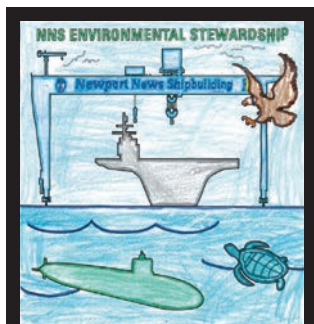

The “Construction Team” trophy was given to General Foreman Larry Gibson and General Foreman Bill Fralich. Gibson and Fralich had

Career Pathways Kicks Off eSHIP

Career Pathways recently partnered with Newport News Public Schools (NNPS) to create the Engineering Shipbuilding Internship Program (eSHIP). The purpose of the program is to develop students with engineering career goals, some of which are the first generation in their family to attend college, while also providing Newport News Shipbuilding a pipeline for recruiting "home grown" engineering talent.

Twelve students from local high schools were selected by NNS to participate in the semester-long job shadowing program. Students are eligible for hire with the company, following the successful completion of a semester-long job shadowing program, a series of summer internships and graduation from an Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology (ABET) accredited two-year or four-year engineering program.

The students begin their NNS internships in June, following their high school graduation. They will continue their internships every summer at NNS until college graduation, where they will then be eligible for hire as engineers and engineering technicians.

"This program enables our engineering departments to work with students before college, train them and provide awareness of the shipyard and engineering processes," said George Holmes, engineering liaison to the program. "The students supplement their education with practical experience, and hopefully gain a better understanding of their interests through rotations, which should enable the students to hit the ground running as a new employee."

The program has been recognized by the U.S. Department of Education as a model of outreach and as a positive example of development in the area of STEM.

Visit the Career Pathways website or contact Gordon Sproat (K18) at 688-3176 for information.

"The sea trials were a huge success," said Cmdr. Dan Caldwell, the submarine's prospective commanding officer. "The ship is in great material condition, and I could not be more proud of the way the crew performed. They have worked tirelessly for the last two years preparing to take this ship to sea, and it showed during sea trials. We look forward to completing the ship's delivery and joining the operational fleet."
