

NNS Dedicates 14th Habitat for Humanity House

Newport News Shipbuilding joined elected officials and community leaders Wednesday, June 1, to dedicate the 14th house shipyard volunteers have constructed in partnership with Habitat for Humanity Peninsula and Greater Williamsburg.

The dedication ceremony welcomed Effrem Barner and his son Shairik to their new home. The following Newport News Shipbuilding, Habitat for Humanity and community leaders were in attendance: Newport News Mayor McKinley Price; Ché Henderson, president, Habitat for Humanity board of directors; Senator Mamie Locke, D-Hampton; Delegate Marcia “Cia” Price, D-Newport News; Delegate David Yancey, R-Newport News; Newport News City Councilwomen Tina Vick and Sharon Scott; Sandra Powell, director, Newport News Redevelopment and Housing Authority; Karen Joyner, CEO of the Virginia Peninsula Food Bank; Rob Hogan, vice president of Manufacturing and Supply Chain Management; Ray Bagley, vice president of Trades Operations; and Arnold Outlaw, president of United Steelworkers Local 8888.

Shipbuilder Steering the Way

Brenda Chapman (O46), was recently presented a level one Ethics On-the-Spot Award by Ray Bagley, vice president of Trades Operations, for her ethical behavior.

Chapman recovered approximately two hundred dollars worth of new washers and other scrap material from the trash. Chapman’s questioning attitude and initiative reduced costs for the company and has allowed for the material to be readily available for utilization on the ship.

To nominate a fellow employee for an On-the-Spot Ethics Award, visit the EEO, Ethics and Compliance website on Yardnet or contact Catrina Hagwood (O18) at 688-1907.

NNS Employees Attend AME LEAN Summit

Newport News Shipbuilding employees attended the Association for Manufacturing Excellence (AME) LEAN Summit in Atlanta, Georgia in May. During the event, participants were able to benchmark world-class organizations such as Chick-fil-A and Georgia Power. They also participated in sessions about leadership, engagement, and lean best practices.

Kelly MacDonald (O51) said, "It was a great opportunity to learn how other companies develop business models and what their manufacturing best practices are around empowering employees to achieve better company results. The tours of the manufacturing companies demonstrated how innovation and employee engagement are utilized in implementing process improvements."

AME's Southeast Region Director Kim Humphrey (O51) said, "I'm honored that my company was so well represented at this event and I was excited to see how these shared best practices will be used to innovate and benefit our organization as we share, learn and grow."

NNS is an AME corporate member and all employees are eligible for a member rate. The 2016 AME International Conference will be held October 24-28 in Dallas, Texas. To learn more, visit AME.org or contact Kim Humphrey (O51) at kim.humphrey@att.net or call 897-4456.

John Warner Lab Array Team Recognized

Recently, USS John Warner (SSN 785) arrived at Newport News Shipbuilding for its Post Shakedown Availability (PSA). The PSA included preventive maintenance and contingency repairs in the Large Aperture Bow (LAB) Array that resides in the ship's bow dome.

X82 Construction Supervisor Jim Weber developed a plan to perform the LAB Array work while the ship was still waterborne, since Warner's PSA is a non-docking availability. "The outside of the dome is mostly surrounded by water, which makes it difficult to control the environmental conditions inside the dome. That was very important to consider for the painting and adhesive work that was part of the required restoration of the LAB Array," he said. "I worked closely with X31 General Foreman Don Richardson to coordinate the effort with his team of electricians, who provided quality work despite the fact that the ship was ballasted up significantly at the bow to enable this work to occur."

The entire execution team was made up of 12 departments including Engineering. All work was completed on May 8, ahead of schedule and under budget.

Hogan spoke on behalf of the shipyard and presented the keys and plaque to the Barner family.

"One of the things that's always impressed me with the company, is the caring spirit of the shipyard workers," he said. "I can tell you that day in and day out, I witness shipyard workers caring for each other, our company, our navy customer and most of all our community."

Effrem said that he is very thankful for the shipyard and steelworkers. "I know you all had something else to do but instead you came here..after work, and I really appreciate that," he said.

2016 marks the first time that shipyard volunteers have completed two houses for Habitat for Humanity in one year.

Did You Know?

As a government contractor, Newport News Shipbuilding is continuously audited by the Defense Contract Audit Agency. Proper timekeeping practices allow the company to maintain accurate records and avoid significant fines and penalties. Remember, proper timekeeping is everyone's individual responsibility.

AMSEC Build-A-Boat Challenge

AMSEC is seeking two-person teams to support the 2016 American Society of Naval Engineers (ASNE)-Sikaflex Ultimate Build-a-Boat Challenge during Harborfest at Town Point Park in Norfolk June 11-12.

Teams will design their craft in advance, build it in four hours and then race. For more information, visit www.asne-tw.org.

REMINDER

SUBSAFE Audit Planned June 20-24

Newport News Shipbuilding will undergo a NAVSEA SUBSAFE, Deep Submergence Systems – Scope of Certification (DSS-SOC) and Fly-By-Wire (FBW) Functional and Level I Audit June 20-24. The audit team will review NNS processes, controls, procedures and records associated with the control of work and testing performed within the SUBSAFE, DSS-SOC and FBW boundaries. The specific areas to be audited include Management, Material Control, Quality Assurance, Re-Entry Control and Technical. NAVSEA will also conduct in-process surveillances of critical production processes that affect the SUBSAFE/DSS/FBW Programs.

Sean Coons, SUBSAFE/DSS-SOC/FBW Program manager, said strict compliance with procedural and contractual requirements by all NNS employees is key to ensuring that NNS-built or maintained submarines and deep submergence systems are safe for the sailors who operate them.

“Our submarines are a success story of the most complex and sophisticated weapons platforms in the world – designed, built and maintained with an unwavering dedication to safety,” Coons said. “All of us at NNS should take great pride in that, but also be humbled by the extraordinary task ahead of us. It requires each of us to exercise continuous vigilance, attention to detail, and a questioning attitude.”

For more information about the audit or for questions, contact Sean Coons (O03) at 698-1595.

REMINDER: Do Not Forward Chain Emails

In recent months, chain emails have been forwarded to employees that include false information and inaccurate security advisories.

Although the emails were sent with good intentions, Newport News Shipbuilding would like to remind all employees not to forward chain emails at work regardless of how important the topic may seem, because the message(s) may or may not include false information.

For example, an email was recently distributed and then forwarded in the company that falsely claimed 30 employees were terminated for having Personal Camera Enabled Devices in a restricted area. This chain email led to unnecessary use of time and resources assigned to address false and inappropriate statements. Also, emails have been forwarded with inaccurate security "advisories" about our parking lots and gate areas causing unnecessary concern and alarm for employees.

NNS takes employee safety very seriously. Security, Human Resources, Labor Relations and Communications work closely together, and when warranted, official company communications will be distributed to all employees with accurate information. If an employee receives a chain email with information they feel needs to be shared with co-workers, they should first speak with their immediate supervisor or a representative from one of the organizations listed above to verify the information is accurate.

For more information related to email use and rules of behavior, employees should reference SSP NO. IS-1012.

June 6, 2016

Dear Shipbuilders,

One of the most important civic duties we have as American citizens is the right to vote. Exercising this right is something that shouldn't be taken for granted, which is why I would like to remind you about the upcoming primary elections in North Carolina on June 7 and Virginia on June 14. These primaries are to choose Republican and Democratic candidates who will run for various offices during the general election in November.

Congressional districts in both states have been redrawn since the last election, so I urge you to check the following websites to see if you live in a district where an election will be held, as well as your current voting location and the candidates on your ballot:

- Virginia: www.vpap.org/local-politics
- North Carolina: www.ncvoter.org/voting-in-nc/your-ballot

Polls in North Carolina will be open from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on June 7. Polls in Virginia will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. on June 14. I also want to remind you that voters in both states will be required to show a photo ID prior to casting their ballot.

Participation in the political process affects our communities and nation today and in the future. No matter what candidate you decide to support, you have a right to let your voice be heard. If you live in a district with an impending primary, I encourage you to make every effort to get out and vote.

Sincerely,
