Shipbuilder Strong Program Continues to Roll Out

More than 5,500 production employees are now “Shipbuilder Strong.” The yard-wide initiative to have all production employees complete the six-session, 18-month Shipbuilder Strong program is progressing. Shipbuilder Strong is a behavioral-based safety program that improves personal health and well-being. Trainers and coaches teach exercise routines specific to the employee’s job and physical ability, while providing insight as to why and how these exercises improve quality of life.

Manufacturing, Virginia-class Submarine program, and CVN 79 crews have completed the first session with CVN 65, CVN 72, CVN 78, Supply Chain Management and Operations programs in process. Once the program is complete, workers receive the Shipbuilder Strong qualification.

With safety being a number one priority at Newport News Shipbuilding, the exercises allow workers to develop better movement patterns, body mechanics, and material handling techniques. Results from this program have shown more than half the crews had safety improvements or maintained their “zero injury” status. The shipyard has also built time into the work day to enable employees to stretch.

“I would definitely recommend the stretching program because it helps prevent injuries especially when you’re wearing a hard hat and working in tight spaces every day,” said Shipbuilder Benjamin Waycaster (X11).

Getting “Immersed” in Shipbuilding

On June 1, Newport News Shipbuilding Talent Acquisition (O20) and Production and Maintenance Skills Training (O26) welcomed local active duty U.S. Navy service members who serve as military career counselors to the shipyard for the first “Military Immersion Experience.”

Twenty-eight students from Booker T. Washington Middle School were recognized during the GEMS year-end ceremony June 4.

Celebrating GEMS

Career Pathways held a year-end ceremony for Girls with Engineering Minds in Shipbuilding (GEMS) June 4 at Booker T. Washington Middle School. The event recognized 28 students with certificates of achievements for completing the STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) program designed to introduce girls to careers in engineering through activities and mentorship.

“This ceremony was a tribute to the dedication these girls made to stay after school to learn about STEM career opportunities at Newport News Shipbuilding,” said GEMS lead, Stephanie White (O20). “The shipyard engineering mentors and I are very proud of our girls.”

During the ceremony, Jennifer Boykin, vice president of Engineering and Design and GEMS executive sponsor, presented each girl an E&D division coin to express her gratitude for the girls’ commitment to the program. Career Pathways will continue GEMS next school year at Booker T. Washington Middle School and will also start a GEMS group at Crittenden Middle School.

"Our goal for this pilot program was to educate the counselors on the diverse career opportunities available at the shipyard. We're dedicated to hiring exceptional employees, and many military veterans are just that," said Fred Andy, Talent Acquisition representative and military outreach specialist (O20).

During the four-day program, the nine counselors participated in hands-on training with engineering and craftsmen trades, met with senior leaders, toured The Apprentice School and learned about the NNS career application process. Jeffrica Key, manager of Product Training (O26), added, "Trades Training was honored to provide this unique opportunity to experience each of the core trades in a practical way to the participants."

Senior Chief Cally Pinson said, "As a Navy counselor, I feel I must change my approach of how I solicit post-Navy opportunities to my transitioning sailors. Before the Military Immersion Experience, I would have promoted NNS only to those with predominantly mechanical skills. Now, my eyes are opened and I realize I would be cheating or short-changing my sailors if I didn't encourage all of them to at least explore all the opportunities offered at the shipyard."

Foreman Glenn LeBlanc (X10) agrees. "Daily stretching has made me feel better prepared to not only do my job at the shipyard, but even with chores at home."

Most production employees and foremen are expected to complete the first session by the end of July.

Mulherin Speaks at L.E.A.R.N.

Safety, inclusion, diversity and engagement were a few of the topics discussed at the L.E.A.R.N event June 4. Newport News Shipbuilding President Matt Mulherin spoke to over 200 employees on the state of the company which was followed by a question and answer session. Mulherin stressed the importance of safety and commended the shipyard for receiving OSHA's VPP "Star" status for safety excellence for another five years. Mulherin also focused on the importance of inclusion and diversity in the workplace.

"People are the key to our success. We're asking you for ideas so that we can improve and work toward a more diverse and inclusive work environment," Mulherin said. "Everyone should feel like a part of the team and that your opinion matters." Other topics discussed were camera phones, parking, and the new HII Family Health Center expected to open this fall.

"I liked hearing that what I am concerned with is on his radar, such as camera phones and parking," said Sonia Gopal (E86). She also enjoyed being able to speak with Mulherin one-on-one to learn about his career at the Shipyard.

Philip Jennings (E17) said, "I liked how several things I've worked on or know about, such as CiWP (Common integrated Work Package) and ORP (Ohio Replacement Program), were brought up. It's nice to know what I care about, the executives of the company care about too."

Thanks to Shipbuilders Involved in USS Barry Dry Dock Effort

The USS Barry entered the floating dry dock on Dec. 18, 2014, for emergent repairs and maintenance to various ship systems. Newport News Shipbuilding was contracted by BAE Systems of Norfolk, Virginia to provide the floating dry dock and temporary systems in order for BAE to accomplish their work. NNS was challenged to accomplish the planning, material procurement, naval architecture services, keel-block setup, temporary systems design and installation within a 16-day window. The USS Barry undocked in February. Special thanks to all shipbuilders involved in the dry docking projects.
