

VCS Shipbuilders Complete NNS' Final Module of Block III

Recently, the Virginia-Class Submarine (VCS) Program completed the bow section module for South Dakota (SSN 790).

The bow module is the final NNS module of the Virginia-Class Submarine Block III contract. It is the largest and heaviest module and is built under a unique teaming arrangement between Newport News Shipbuilding and General Dynamics Electric Boat.

"The bow construction team has been challenged to look for new ways to achieve best ever results. After successful delivery of the bow module for USS Indiana (SSN 789), the team delivered...

...South Dakota's bow with a new record time in outfitting," said VCS Director of General Manufacturing Rob Austin. "I commend the team on their continuous drive to achieve best-ever results."

South Dakota is the 17th boat of the Virginia class. Final construction of South Dakota will be completed at Electric Boat in Groton, Connecticut.

Once complete, it will be 7,800 tons and 377 feet in length, have a beam of 34 feet, and operate at speeds greater than 25 knots submerged. It is designed with a reactor plant that will not require refueling during the planned life of the ship, reducing lifecycle costs while increasing underway time. It will have the capability to attack targets ashore with highly accurate Tomahawk cruise missiles and conduct covert long-term surveillance of land area, seaside waters or other sea-based forces.

NNS Vice President of Nuclear Propulsion Barry Fletcher, center, participates as a panelist during the 2016 Intermountain Energy Summit held in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

NNS participates in Energy Summit

In August, representatives from Newport News Shipbuilding (NNS), and its subsidiaries Stoller Newport News Nuclear (SN3) and Newport News Industrial (NNI), participated in the 2016 Intermountain Energy Summit held in Idaho Falls, Idaho. Clean energy innovation related to nuclear, solar, wind, geothermal and energy storage was the focus of the summit.

Representatives met with industry and government leaders to discuss nuclear energy construction, maintenance, research and development, and NNS representatives provided a demonstration of augmented reality technology.

SN3 President Nick Lombardo provided an overview of NNS and its subsidiaries, SN3 and NNI, to company executives, researchers, U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) officials, Idaho government officials and lawmakers.

Lombardo also served as a moderator to answer questions related to renewable energy and the challenges facing the nation's energy needs.

NNS Vice President of Nuclear Propulsion Barry Fletcher participated as a panelist during the summit. Fletcher addressed misperceptions about clean energy and led discussions on the importance of nuclear energy and innovations in nuclear construction, manufacturing and new nuclear technologies.

Huntington Ingalls Industries Awards Educational Scholarships

Last week, Huntington Ingalls Industries (HII) announced that its newly established scholarship fund awarded 78 scholarships to pre-kindergarten and post-secondary students of HII employees.

HII's third party administrator, Scholarship Management Services, a division of Scholarship America, received more than 500 applications, and through a selection process, based on both academic and financial need, the program awarded scholarships totaling in value of $210,000 for the first year and $504,000 over the award recipients program duration.

Individual award amounts ranged from $1,500 for selected students enrolled in a two-year college program to $3,000 for selected students enrolled in a four-year program; the post-secondary awards are renewable for recipients who remain in good academic standing. The fund also awarded scholarships of up to $3,000 for pre-school education costs.

Of the scholarships awarded, 30 were granted to post-secondary students in four-year education programs, 16 were granted to post-secondary students in two-year technical/vocation programs, and 32 were granted to students in pre-kindergarten school readiness programs.

Newport News Shipbuilding Production Planner and Scheduler Gale Royal (X76), mother of a college scholarship recipient, is extremely grateful that the company acknowledges the importance of education.

"The fact that Mr. Petters would decline his salary for the program shows you how much he cares about his employees," said Royal.

NNS Team Improves Inspection Process

As a result of an X11 “Fit to Fit” initiative, an improvement team was recently developed and tasked with reviewing existing structural inspection processes at Newport News Shipbuilding. X11 “Fit to Fit” initiatives focus on improvements in the areas of health, safety, knowledge, proficiency and engagement.

After just a few weeks of collaboration and brainstorming, the team identified and conducted a test pilot to eliminate structural re-inspections of non-critical items. The pilot program was considered successful when random checks were conducted by Department X67 and zero discrepancies were identified.

“The new process has proven to reduce inspection time and reduce time spent on re-work,” said Quality Test Inspector Derrick Hicks (X67).

After successful completion of the pilot program, and with support from X11 leadership, the improvement team incorporated the new process throughout New Carrier Construction Programs.

Recently, X11 Trade Director Joe Sabol

Career Pathways Offers Hands-on Training to Teachers

Recently, Newport News Shipbuilding representatives from Career Pathways provided hands-on training for teachers at the Downtown Hampton Child Development Center (DHCDC).

The DHCDC is a nonprofit organization that serves approximately 160 children, from six weeks to five years of age.

Throughout the day, teachers were able to participate in demonstrations that offered new ways of incorporating principles of Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) into the DHCDC’s curriculum.

The demonstrations gave teachers a glimpse around the world through the use of Google Cardboard virtual-reality goggles. They were also taught how to create homemade slime using Elmer’s glue, borax and water.

“How exciting for the teachers at Downtown Hampton Child Development Center to be able to access current STEM information and activities from such highly skilled professionals at Newport News Shipbuilding,” said DHCDC Board Member Nancy Petters, wife of Huntington Ingalls Industries’ President Mike Petters. “These curious students will surely be the beneficiaries of hard stuff done right. What a great partnership between two wonderful organizations.”

VCS Shipbuilder Recognized for an Improvement Idea

During a recent crew talk, Carroll Goodwyn (X31) brought a concern about an old pipe bending tool to his supervisor Rodney Huffman (X82/X31). The tool was not functioning properly and was causing the mechanics some discomfort. Goodwyn suggested that Huffman find a new machine that was easier to use and helped the mechanics in tight spaces. Huffman, who encourages his crew to bring new ideas to the table, quickly took action. Within a few weeks, and with the support of both Make-up Foreman Steven Ours and Industrial Engineer Steve Harbick, Goodwyn's suggestion became a reality and a new pipe bending tool was purchased for the crew.

Carroll Goodwyn (X31) displays a new pipe bending tool used by X31 VCS mechanics.

"I couldn't be more excited to use the new pipe bending tool and I'm really looking forward to training the mechanics on how to use it," said Goodwyn.

Employee Engagement Survey Coming Soon

The Gallup organization will begin administering this year's employee engagement survey Wednesday, Sept. 28. Employees with computer access will be sent a link to the survey via email and employees without computer access will be given a paper copy. As always, the 17-question survey is entirely confidential and shouldn't take longer than 15 minutes to complete (note: participating hourly employees will be paid for time spent completing the survey).

Newport News Shipbuilding's senior leadership team takes the results of this survey very seriously and uses them to help each team learn what they can do to create a positive workplace where all employees can thrive. Company survey results will be shared with all employees at a later date.

HII Policy on Employee Political Activity at Work

Last week, Huntington Ingalls Industries Director of Ethics and Business Conduct Kenny Rogers sent a letter to employees regarding political activity at work.

With the 2016 political election cycle currently in full swing, it's important to recall and comply with the company's policy (Corporate Policy A7, "Employee Political Activity") concerning political activities at work. HII respects the rights of employees to participate individually and not on the company's behalf in the political process. This includes making voluntary contributions of employees' non-working time and personal resources to support candidates and political parties of their choice.

HII's policy does not allow political campaign or partisan political activities on company property and does not permit the use of HII resources, including computers, e-mail or employee work time, for campaigning, collecting contributions, or distributing or posting any printed or written materials, signs or banners at work. Further, communicating political messages and engaging in political debates and commentaries on candidates and related issues should not take place on company time.

The political activities of or on behalf of the company are carried out only as permitted by and in strict compliance with all applicable laws and company policies and procedures. For more information, please contact an HR Business Partner, your Business Conduct Office, or the Government and Customer Relations department.
