Twenty Huntington Ingalls Industries employees were recognized for achievements in the fields of science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) during the 21st annual Women of Color STEM Conference in Detroit, Oct. 13 through Oct. 15. Of the 20 total award recipients, seven were Newport News Shipbuilding employees.

Vannia Willis (E30), an 18-year engineering veteran at Newport News Shipbuilding, was presented a Community Service Award, which recognizes women of color who use technology in novel ways to improve access to STEM jobs and educational opportunities. Among her many activities to encourage youth participation in STEM, Willis helped start the first Lego Mind Storm Robotics Program in southeast Washington and developed a tutoring program for middle and high school students at a local church. She also organized a program that challenged students' logic and strategic capabilities as part of Math, Engineering, Science Achievement (MESA), and she serves as technology lead for First Robotics and NNS' Girls Engineer Minds in Shipbuilding (GEMS) Program. She has also been lead coordinator for the Women of Color and BEYA K-12 STEM workshops since 2009.

Paulette Harris (E79), designer, Samaria Hunter (T51), computer systems security manager, and Mary McDermott (E81), engineering manager, were recipients of the 2016 Technology Star Award, which...

Shipbuilders Participate in Heart Walk

Approximately 2,000 Newport News Shipbuilding employees, family and friends, the largest group of employees from one company, signed-up for the Hampton Roads Heart Walk. NNS-registered participants walked approximately two miles around the Peninsula Town Center this past Saturday.

"I love supporting this event in honor of my dad who had a heart attack," said Carlos Bynum (X73). "We had a wonderful turnout and it is always a lot of fun while supporting a good cause."

...Carrier Construction Mike Shawcross. “Now is the time to evaluate our lost and damaged material efforts in a comprehensive way that includes, but is not limited to, improving communication, updating policies, procedures, and training.”

In the coming months, the first initiative of the council will be to work with employees throughout the material value stream to solicit input for development of best practices that will be shared across all NNS programs.

“NNS’ goal is to have “zero” lost and damaged material,” said X71 Construction Supervisor and Council Lead Roger Williams. “Although this may appear to be a lofty goal, it is the attitude that each and every shipbuilder must have as trusted custodians of all the material we handle.”

NNS’ United Way Campaign Underway

Newport News Shipbuilding’s 2016 United Way campaign kicked off on Thursday, October 20 and will run through November 4.

Prior to the kickoff, a training session was held for division and department coordinators who learned about the difference United Way makes in our community and for our shipbuilders. Representatives from the Boys and Girls Clubs and the Virginia Peninsula Foodbank spoke about how their services are possible because of United Way. Following their remarks, United Way campaign Co-Chair Yasmine Robinson (O29) shared a personal story about how the United Way helped her family when they lost their home and were evacuated during Hurricane Katrina.

“For years, I contributed to the United Way and served as a department coordinator without ever realizing that I would one day need their services,” Robinson said. “As you ask your colleagues to contribute, let them know that the United Way could one day be there for them.”

Employees will be receiving their United Way enrollment guide from their department coordinators with details of how to donate and how to designate contributions to specific nonprofits. To donate, employees will need their enrollment guide and their PIN number located on their paycheck stub. Employees who donate over $150 per year will receive a “SmartCard” that offers discounts at businesses and restaurants throughout the region.

“I challenge you to be leaders,” said United Way campaign Co-Chair Cassie Burks (O26). “Leaders take action for the good and United Way gives us that opportunity. If all employees contribute even $1 per week, we will be well on the way to improving the lives of countless citizens in our community.”

CFA Completes Lube Oil Assemblies Using Visual Work Instructions

In September, the Machine Shop and Pipe Assembly Shop completed four lube oil complex assemblies for John F. Kennedy (CVN 79) using Visual Work Instructions (VWI). This is the first time this specific assembly has been manufactured at Newport News Shipbuilding. The Integrated Digital Shipbuilding (iDS) team collaborated with shop planners, foremen, craftsmen, design and industrial engineering to create VWIs, a 3-D, fully digital product.

"The team worked together to create digital design data and develop a clear build strategy," said iDS Manager Sam Barnett. "Creating VWI's has aided the shops in resolving issues ahead of time which reduces delays that would not have surfaced until they hit the shop floor."

Machine Shop Planning Manager Jimmy Bridges added, "Collaborating with the team really helped us all provide a great product to the deckplate. I'm interested in helping find out how NNS can effectively collaborate more in the future."

The shops took on the challenge of executing the work using mobile devices while providing valuable feedback throughout the build process.

"I was surprised how quickly the mechanics gravitated to the VWI," said Pipe Shop Foreman David Chavis. "They really like it and are ready for more. I was glad to see we were part of the development process and that our feedback was sought out and valued. That really helped engage the mechanics."

The lube oil assemblies were delivered in time to support CVN 79 needs.

"We are excited to see what the iDS future holds for the CFA and NNS," said Pipe Shop Superintendent Rob Lane. "We can feel the momentum building and are ready to work with the iDS team to continue to develop and hone new iDS processes and products. While there is a lot still to work out, we are ready to see these digital products become part of normal NNS processes."
