

Diverse Teams Drive New Carriers Forward

Last month, shipbuilders completed another giant superlift on John F. Kennedy (CVN 79), weighing in at 760 metric tons. Production in the North Yard is humming around the clock, with shipbuilders implementing strategies they call, “Game Changers” to increase affordability on the second Ford-class ship. One of those strategies is to reduce the number of superlifts by increasing both the size and the outfitting of the units.

In fact, the CVN 79 compartments in the Feb. 19 superlift were installed in two separate superlifts on the first-in-class Gerald R. Ford (CVN 78) and approximately 5,000 additional parts were installed during the pre-outfitting. With units being more outfitted than in previous ships, superlifts involve all trades—something that Lead Rigger Michael Williams said forms a common bond among the shipbuilders involved.

“It’s a pretty awesome feeling,” Williams said. “At the end of the day, I can look down at the boat and see what we have accomplished together. It’s nothing that we’ve done individually – it’s a team effort. That accomplishment makes us a family.”

In total, the program is on track to complete Kennedy with 44 fewer crane lifts than its predecessor.

“This superlift is a testament to what we can do as a team when we all work together,” said CVN 79 Program Director Mike Butler. “No matter where you work in the company, and no matter what product or service you provide, if we focus on making the deckplate craftsmen successful, then we are just scratching the surface of what we can accomplish.”

WiSE Hosts Women's History Month Event

On March 23, Women in Shipbuilding Enterprise (WiSE) held a Women's History Month event to celebrate the contributions of the women of Newport News Shipbuilding, past and present. The theme of this year's event was, "Honoring Trailblazing Women in Business and Labor."

Mary Cullen, vice president of Nuclear Propulsion, was the guest speaker and delivered a message on no longer fearing change and navigating through work/life balance in the midst of change.

"There are many benefits of change such as meeting new people, learning new skills, applying the best practices to improve, and being more open to diverse opportunities," Cullen said. "Balancing work with life is tough and we have to make choices and sacrifices all the time, so we have to figure out what our priorities are for that day and balance life from there."

Cullen challenged the audience to raise the bar and to decide what you are going to do to make a difference.

Toni Robinson (O14) attended the event. "I've been here for 33 years and it's always good for women shipbuilders to come together," she said. "The message was very enlightening and encouraging and a good reminder that we can't feel guilty when we can't make everything."

Following the presentation, Cullen along with WiSE leadership, honored female Master Shipbuilders who were in attendance.

ACIBC: Ready to Build 12

Newport News Shipbuilding relies on suppliers from 46 states across the country to provide parts and services for the construction and maintenance of aircraft carriers. This group of suppliers form the Aircraft Carrier Industrial Base Coalition (ACIBC), which meets annually in Washington, D.C. to urge congressional leaders to provide support for the U.S. Navy aircraft carrier program. Watch the video that was shown at the 2017 ACIBC Action Days, March 21-22. It features a message President Donald J. Trump brought to Newport News during his visit aboard Gerald R. Ford (CVN 78) March 2, 2017. A supplier and NNS shipbuilders are also featured in the video regarding the importance of quality.

For more information, visit ACIBC's website. Share this video on social media using #ACIBC2017 and #ReadyToBuild12.

Recognizing Trailblazing Women

The national theme for Women's History Month is "Honoring Trailblazing Women in Labor and Business." To coincide with this year's theme, the shipyard is recognizing three trailblazing female shipbuilders at Newport News Shipbuilding. This week, the spotlight is on Shirley Langston (X74), the longest serving female Master Shipbuilder in the company, with 59 years of continuous service.

Langston began her career in 1958 as an office clerk in the Hull and Machinery Tool Room. In this position, she was responsible for checking out tools and safety equipment to craftsmen, and keeping a continuous record of where the tools and equipment was at all times. Langston is currently a production planner and scheduler in the Carrier Overhaul Production Control Division where she is responsible for producing and issuing work packages for all the trades on carrier overhauls at NNS.

During her career, she has witnessed the shipyard grow, watched many ships be built, launched and sail away – and even return to the yard for maintenance. "When I first came to the yard, the company was in the process of building USS Enterprise (CVN 65) in Dry Dock 11," she said. "The shipyard was a lot smaller – the yard only went as far north as the Steel Fabrication Shop. Anything beyond that has been built since I was here."

In 2011, Langston served as the Ship's Sponsor for Capt. Ambrose, the shipyard's newest tugboat. "It was a great honor for me as a Master Shipbuilder to have served as the ship sponsor for Capt. Ambrose," she said. "It was a day I will never forget."

Langston added, "I feel very proud to have been a part of NNS and had a part in all the great ships that have been built here, especially the true legend – Enterprise. Having seen 'Big E' built from start to finish and to also witness her final days has been an experience that will stay with me forever. The shipyard is and will always be part of my life."

FIRST ROBOTICS

Newport News Shipbuilding sponsored the 2017 FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) Robotics Competition at Churchland High School in Portsmouth March 18-19. This year is the second year the company has sponsored the annual competition, designed to simulate real-world engineering and design challenges.

"Newport News Shipbuilding is proud to be the sponsor for this event," said Keynote Speaker Rob Hogan, NNS vice president of Manufacturing and Supply Chain Management. "It is one of many things that we do beyond shipbuilding to invest in our communities, our schools, and our employees, and all of the citizens of this great area."

Hogan added, "When I talk to our suppliers the same things concern them that keep me awake at night: the employees of our future. I can tell you just by what I've seen today, our future is bright and I intend on sharing this program with our suppliers."

This year's theme was, "FIRST SteamWorks" and 28 robotic teams competed with robots to prepare steam-powered airships for ultimate long distance racing. Of the 28 teams, nine were from high schools located in southeastern Virginia.

In addition to sponsoring the event, NNS had more than 35 employees participate as volunteers – 14 served as team mentors and Bill Docalovich, NNS director of Learning and Development Innovation for Trades

Operations, served as a judge.

Shipbuilders Bill Hunter (X45) and Michael Dreher-Byrd (E61) mentored "2363 Triple Helix" a team from Menchville High School who won first place in this year's competition. "It's been a rewarding experience as a mentor for the Menchville team," said Hunter. "It is so inspiring to see each and every mentor take time away from their families each week and spend hours with these kids to help them prepare for the competitions."

April Crawford (E83), Engineer Planning Analyst, participated in the event as a volunteer. "Volunteering at an event like FIRST Robotics really shows how creative thinking, learning and teamwork can come together," said Crawford. "What these high school students are able to accomplish by designing, building, programming and operating the robots with minimal assistance is astounding. What this program does for any student interested in STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) learning or working with technology and tooling is very important to the future of any industry."

Visit the FIRST Robotics website on MyNNS for additional information. For questions or to see how to get involved contact, Chris Brown (O35) at 688-7897 or Vannia Willis (E30) at 534-4714.

PEER Rotational Program is Accepting Applications

The Professional Enhancement and Enrichment Rotation (PEER) Program is currently accepting applications for its next cohort. PEER is a great way to discover opportunities in the shipyard. High performing, salaried employees, who are individual contributors, are eligible to participate.

The cohort, which includes a rotation through four areas of the shipyard over a two year period, starts in July 2017.

View the host department work agreements to see the areas employees can rotate to within the program. Select "Participant Videos" and "Testimonials" to see what other employees have said about the program. To obtain a copy of the application, select "PEER Program Resources," then "Nomination Form."

Applications are due on April 14. On the application, employees can identify their top three desired selections during each rotation. Applications should be sent to Wayne Potter (E08). Wayne can also answer questions about this program.

Talent Acquisition Announces New REFER Program

On April 3, Newport News Shipbuilding's Talent Acquisition will begin a new and improved "Recognizing Employees for Encouraging Referrals" (REFER) program.

"Our employees are our greatest resource for finding talented individuals to work at the shipyard," said Cindi Wolfe, director of Talent Acquisition. "We want to recognize employees for taking the time to refer someone to an open job. The shipyard is hiring again in a big way and every referral helps."

Through the new program:

- Employees who submit an employee referral, regardless if the candidate is hired or not, will be entered into a monthly drawing for an NNS backpack.
- Employees who submit an employee referral and the candidate is hired for any position will be entered into a monthly drawing for $50 of company store merchandise. A catalog of items to choose from will be provided.
- Employees are encouraged to continue to submit referrals for hard to fill positions. Currently, various cash bonus awards are offered for entry-level electrical engineer positions and experienced computer systems security analyst, engineer, systems administrator, and welder positions.

Employees must complete the REFER form on the HII Careers website to submit an employee referral: www.huntingtoningalls.com/careers/refer-a-friend. The "Refer a Friend to Join Us" link can be found on the Careers homepage in the "Current HII Employees" section. The form is accessible from both work and home. Guidelines and instructions are provided, as well as a current listing of all cash bonus eligible positions. Note: Employees directly involved in the hiring process of a specific position are not eligible for the various awards.

Employees are reminded that successful referrals must meet the basic qualifications for a job. Questions can be sent to buildyourcareer@hii-co.com.

Diverse Teams Drive New Carriers Forward

Digital initiatives are also producing good results. The integrated Digital Shipbuilding (iDS) effort has put mobile devices in the hands of hundreds of mechanics and foremen, piloting the use of 3-D visual work instructions in place of 2-D paper drawings. The CVN 79 Program has noted an increase in the quality and flow of information between Engineering and Planning to the trades and their foremen.

"We can take snap shots of the work and send it to them," said Deck Electrician Wesley Wooten, describing the new digital toolset. "I'm able to send my foreman real time information and he's able to respond in real time."

Behind the digital tools being used in the North Yard, a whole team of engineers, designers, planners and software developers are working hard to improve the flow of data from the digital product model to the hands of the shipbuilders. These teams are working closely with construction teams on coming up with the best ideas that deliver the most value.

These diverse teams from across the company are already setting the stage for the next aircraft carrier, Enterprise (CVN 80), which will be the first NNS-built ship to use digital work instructions instead of 2-D drawings for construction.
