

Celebrating CVN 80's First Milestone

Newport News Shipbuilding cut a 35-ton steel plate on Thursday, Aug. 24 to kick off advance construction of Enterprise (CVN 80). The steel plate will become part of the foundation of Enterprise, the ninth U.S. Navy ship to bear the legendary name.

Ceremony participants included NNS President Jennifer Boykin; CVN 80 Ship's Sponsors Simone Biles and Katie Ledecy; Shipbuilder Kayla Cook (O68), who sang the national anthem; Machine Hand Specialist Tony Goodman (X15), who gave the invocation; Rep. Bobby Scott, D-Va.; Rear Adm. Brian K. Antonio, program executive officer, aircraft carriers; shipbuilders and their families; and representatives of the recently decommissioned Enterprise (CVN 65).

During the ceremony, Biles and Ledecy gave orders to Machine Hand Specialist Wayne Kania (X15) to cut the steel, which marks the first construction milestone in the life of the ship.

"Much like U.S. athletes who represent the United States around the world displaying patriotism, pride and strength, so do the ships of our nation," Biles said. "My father served in the U.S. Air Force for over 21 years and taught me discipline, determination and dedication to achieve my goals, and these same values are on display as these advanced ships are built here."

NNS is performing the work under an advance fabrication contract that was awarded earlier this year. Award of the CVN 80 detail design and construction contract is anticipated in 2018.

"We really, truly would not be able to compete at the level that we do without the freedom that we have, and that's something we promise we will never take for granted," Ledecy said. "We're excited to cut this steel today and start this process."

Boykin said CVN 80's construction will incorporate greater innovation and efficiency. "With this ship, we will 'boldly go where no one has gone before,'" she said. "She will be built using digital technology rather than traditional paper work packages and drawings. We will build more of this ship indoors, in new facilities so that our people have more opportunities to work under cover and out of the weather. CVN 80 will revolutionize how we build ships, just as her predecessor, CVN 65 – the world's first nuclear-powered aircraft carrier – revolutionized our industry."

about big ideas

NNS President Jennifer Boykin is starting a new communications forum called, "SmallTalk: about big ideas." The premise behind SmallTalk is to share her perspectives about important topics in a casual format, to include blog-style posts, video conversations and in-person discussions. Check out Boykin's first post of the series on p. 3.

Following the ceremony, shipbuilders and their families lined up to take photos with Biles and Ledecy.

Natasha Freeman (O19) brought her daughter, Jayda. "My daughter is a gymnast and spends about 30 hours a week in the gym," said Freeman, as they waited in line to take a photo with the Olympians. "We wanted to experience this, and I wanted my daughter to meet her idol. It's really exciting."

Desmond Shamlee (X11), said he came to the ceremony for the experience, but the opportunity to see two gold medalists was an added bonus. "I just wanted to be a part of the first cut of a new ship," he said.

Melanie Cruz (X31) came with her mother and sister. She said attending the ceremony was a great experience, especially since she spent more than two years working on Gerald R. Ford (CVN 78). "The sponsors were a big deal," Cruz said. "But I saw the middle of carrier construction on CVN 78. I wanted to see how it began, and this was good way to do that."

The Master of the Cut

After the crowd heard from Ship's Sponsors Katie Ledecy and Simone Biles, all eyes were on Machine Hand Specialist Wayne Kania (X15) as he performed the ceremonial first cut of steel last week. But he wasn't shaken from all of the attention.

"It's not a regular day on the job, but this work – cutting heavy steel – is something I do every day for every boat," Kania said.

It's the third time the Master Shipbuilder has performed the ceremonial cut for a new aircraft carrier, having done so for Gerald R. Ford (CVN 78) in 2005 and John F. Kennedy (CVN 79) in 2011. And he's been doing the work even longer, since before Newport News Shipbuilding began holding ceremonial steel cuts for new carriers.

"There's always something thick to cut, whether it's sub or carrier. But it takes a little over two years to get through the initial carrier parts, so that's all I'll be doing," Kania said.

"After a while, you don't even know what ship you're working on. You just come in here, fire up the torch and go."

Organizational Change Announced

NNS President Jennifer Boykin has announced Don Godwin's appointment as the new chief financial officer and vice president of Business Management. He takes over for Mike Helpinstill, who is joining the HII corporate office as vice president of Strategic Transactions. These changes are effective Sept. 5.

Flag to Honor Shipbuilders and Sailors

A state flag that flew over the Montana State Capitol in honor of Virginia-class submarine (VCS) Montana (SSN 794) and her future crews will soon make its way to the ship's construction site at Newport News Shipbuilding.

The ship's commissioning committee recently showed the special flag to a group of veterans during a Rotary Club meeting in Kalispell, Montana. The veterans also saw a presentation featuring NNS shipbuilders from the VCS Program.

The flag, which also honors the NNS shipbuilders who are constructing Montana, will eventually be presented to the ship's crew for use at special events.

Veterans from Montana stand in front of the state flag that will be displayed at Montana's (SSN 794) construction site at NNS.

Ethical foul ball: A lesson from the dugout

By Jennifer Boykin

President, Newport News Shipbuilding

A few years ago, I attended a Norfolk Tides game with my husband and Shaun, the 6-year-old son of close friends. At the end of one of the innings, I took Shaun to the dugout where the first baseman was tossing game balls out to children. He saw the excitement on Shaun's face and kindly threw a ball to him. Before Shaun could catch it, an adult jumped in front of him, caught the ball – and went back to his seat to keep it!

We were both shocked, and of course, Shaun was visibly upset. As we walked back to our seats, the crowd started to boo the man. Feeling pressured by the crowd's reaction, the man begrudgingly handed the ball to another, older boy standing near him.

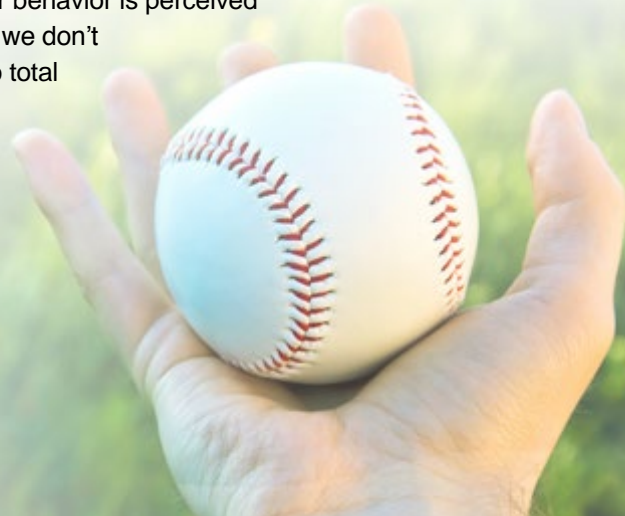

What happened next was incredible.

The older boy, who now had the ball, walked over to our seats and handed it to Shaun. The crowd erupted in applause.

This experience made me think about how our behavior affects others, and how our behavior is perceived by others, whether we want to believe it or not. We are all on a stage – even when we don't realize it. We stand as examples – good or bad – to our kids, our teammates and to total strangers. The words we use, the actions we take, the content we post on social media – it all represents who we are and what we value.

August is designated as Ethics Awareness Month at Huntington Ingalls Industries. Although we have chosen this month as a time to put an even greater emphasis on ethics, it's a topic that we must think about each and every day of the year.

Take a moment to think about a time in your life when you've witnessed an example of ethics and integrity at its best and at its worst. Share that experience with your teammates, and make ethics part of your conversations – not just in August, but always.

VCS Program Holds a Series of "Leadership Huddles"

The U.S. Navy's confidence in shipbuilders in the Virginia-Class Submarine (VCS) Program is helping to funnel more work to Newport News Shipbuilding, VCS leadership said during a series of "leadership huddles" held last week. That work includes ongoing submarine construction and new sustained business in post shakedown availabilities (PSAs).

"The future for the company and for gainful and stable employment looks great. Executing the mountain of work ahead of us is going to be heavy, but we absolutely can do it," said VCS Program Director Justin Byrum.

Submarine Programs Trade Director Willie Hayes and VCS Construction Director Bob Meyer also spoke during the huddles, focusing on the importance of making safety priority No. 1, first-time quality and the onboarding of additional personnel.

Numerous construction projects are underway at NNS with more planned in the coming years to help meet new and increasing demands for submarines from the Navy. In addition to the Joint Manufacturing Assembly Facility (JMAF) currently under construction in the North Yard, there are plans to expand the Modular Outfitting Facility (MOF) to increase the current delivery capacity.

"This is not just about good business, it's about doing what our Navy and our nation need us to do," said Matt Needy, vice president of VCS Program and Fleet Services.

Jim Weber (X82) was encouraged by what he heard in the meeting. "Opportunity lies ahead for us. There's opportunity for us to make a difference and opportunities for people to step up and get themselves promoted to become the leaders that we need to tackle all of this work," he said.

American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund: Hurricane Harvey

Huntington Ingalls Industries sent the following message to employees on Monday, Aug. 28:

Hurricane Harvey made landfall in southeastern Texas on Friday as a Category 4 storm. Although it has weakened to a tropical storm, it continues to cause unprecedented and catastrophic flooding, impacting the lives of hundreds of thousands of people, including 650 HII employees in Texas.

As we have done with other disasters affecting our workforce, HII has activated a "microsite" that facilitates donations to the American Red Cross' Disaster Relief Fund.

The American Red Cross is a not-for-profit humanitarian organization that depends on volunteers and the generosity of the American public to perform its mission. Your tax-deductible donations will help with ongoing efforts to mobilize volunteers, vehicles, food and relief supplies to those people impacted by the extreme weather.

If you would like to contribute, please visit: www.redcross.org/huntingtoningalls-emp.

Please keep our Texas-based colleagues in HII's Technical Solutions division in your thoughts as their part of the country endures the storm and begins to recover.

Northrop Grumman Savings Plan Settlement

If you were an employee of Northrop Grumman Corp. anytime between 2000 and 2009 and participated in a Northrop Grumman savings plan, you may have received information regarding a class-action lawsuit and potential settlement. This has nothing to do with the HII 401(k) plan or the administration of the HII plan. However, if you choose to roll over your portion of the settlement to an HII plan, view instructions on how to fill out the Former Participant Claim Form on MyNNS. Questions about the Northrop Grumman 401(k) settlement process should be directed to the phone number provided in the settlement mailing.

Newport News
Shipbuilding

August 22, 2017

Dear Shipbuilders,

I am pleased to announce that Don Godwin has been named Newport News Shipbuilding's new chief financial officer (CFO) and vice president of Business Management. Don will succeed Mike Helpinstill who is joining the Huntington Ingalls Industries corporate office as vice president of Strategic Transactions. These changes will be effective on September 5.

Please join me in thanking Mike for his leadership and dedicated service to NNS. Since joining the company in 1996, he has always demonstrated professionalism and commitment to our business. We wish him the very best with this new opportunity.

Don Godwin comes to us after more than 20 years with Harris Corporation and its predecessor companies. He currently serves as CFO of Hitachi Data Systems Federal and is a certified public accountant. Although new to shipbuilding, Don has a family connection to NNS. His grandfather worked at the yard in the 1940s, serving as a crane operator. And like many of our shipbuilders, Don's a "Hokie," having graduated from Virginia Tech with a bachelor's degree in finance.

In addition to Don's strong financial background and business operations experience, he brings a unique, external perspective that will be critical to our business transformation into the digital shipbuilding world. He will report directly to me.

Please join me in welcoming Don to the Newport News Team and supporting him in his new role.

All the best,

Jennifer Boykin
President
Newport News Shipbuilding
