New Crane Rises at NNS

Newport News Shipbuilding's skyline changed last weekend when crews lifted into place the girders of the shipyard's new 315-metric-ton Goliath gantry crane.

"We have been getting pushed back by the weather for several weeks now, but thankfully we caught a break Saturday morning and were able to begin the 1,700-metric-ton lift," said Brian Jones (O48), project manager for the crane replacement project.

It took crews 12 hours on Saturday and until noon on Sunday to lift the crane's girders, which are emblazoned with NNS' name and logo. At 241 feet tall, the new crane is even taller than the 1,050-metric-ton crane in the North Yard, also known as "Big Blue." It will replace the 49-year-old green Goliath gantry crane that currently spans dry docks 10 and 11.

However, the green crane isn't coming down just yet. It will remain in use for the Refueling and Complex Overhaul of USS George Washington (CVN 73).

Delaware Governor Visits NNS

Delaware Gov. John Carney visited Newport News Shipbuilding Aug. 1 to tour the shipyard and greet some of the shipbuilders who have worked on the Virginia-class submarine that bears his state's name.

After the tour, Carney said he was impressed by the shipbuilders he met and the pride they take in their work.

"I'm just really impressed and proud to know we have this kind of facility in the United States of America," he said. "We are excited to know there (will be) a submarine out there protecting our country that's named after the first state, the state of Delaware."

Delaware (SSN 791) is set to be christened at NNS on Sept. 15.

Summer Interns Rise to the Challenge

Many myths surround the life of a summer intern – making coffee, endless runs to the copy machine and busy work. Fortunately for Technology Development (E32) interns, Victoria Hill, Tallak Meland and Zamir Piedrahita, there was nothing mundane about their experience this summer.

In addition to tours of Newport News Shipbuilding and NASA Langley, the trio received hands-on exposure to both metal- and plastic-based additive manufacturing, experienced the virtual reality of the Rover Room and rounded out their summer completing a complex, 3D printed part in Autodesk Inventor as part of a final "Intern Challenge," designed by Engineering Manager John Ralls.

The challenge was designed to encourage the interns to think outside of the box and expose them to common engineering issues. They evaluated different approaches for topology optimization, a common tool for lightweight designs in the field of additive manufacturing.

"The 'Intern Challenge' was a very exciting and challenging task that gave us some much needed engineering experience and tremendously helped us understand how to think and approach engineering problems like professionals," Piedrahita said.

Each intern developed an optimized design, formulated technical data to justify their assumptions, fabricated their part in 3D in plastic, and justified their technical decisions to their peers.

"It was rewarding to see our interns work through many of the common challenges faced by engineers from material identification to evaluating design feasibility. All three developed creative designs that demonstrated our goal of topology optimizing the part," Ralls said.

VERG Hosts Coast Guard Birthday Celebration

Newport News Shipbuilding's Veterans Employee Resource Group (VERG) hosted a Coast Guard birthday celebration Aug. 3. VERG members kicked off the event with a Coast Guard-logged cake and bottled water.

"I just wanted to do something to give back," said Gary Williams (X33), who currently serves in the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 61 in Hampton and just completed his first 30 days in the shipyard. Williams' wife has served in the Coast Guard for six years. Her service inspired him to get more involved and join Flotilla 61.

VERG is planning additional military branch birthday celebrations in the future. The events recognize and thank veterans for having served and continuing to serve the nation as shipbuilders.

A birthday celebration for the Air Force will be held Sept. 18 at Applebee's (Bldg. 227). For more information about VERG, contact Adam Krininger (X84) at 380-4286 or visit the VERG website on MyNNS.

At the project site, shipbuilders will soon notice the removal of lifting equipment that was used to erect the new crane. The large fenced-off construction site will be reduced in the coming months as the project allows, according to Jones.

“Our team was excited to reach this very visible milestone, and I am privileged and proud to work with such a talented team on a daily basis. This crane will be a great asset to the RCOH program, and without it, that work would not be possible,” he said.

Additional work and testing will continue into early next year. The crane is expected to be operational in the second quarter of 2019.

Contractors Recognized for JMAF Work

Newport News Shipbuilding recognized contractors for their commitment to safety and quality during construction at the Joint Manufacturing and Assembly Facility (JMAF).

Those acknowledged included Dennie Noble of L.E. Ballance Electrical Service, Ken Plas of Unitherm, Marlon Brandon of Lee Telecom Inc., Shea Barella of LPR Construction, Rodney Thorn of I-Icon Southeast and James Evans of Schwob Building Company, LTD.

NNS also recognized Schwob Building Company, LTD as a whole for its work on the site.

“One of the pillars of being a Voluntary Protection Programs (VPP) site is contractor management,” said Ryan McTheny (O27).

“We want to make sure our contractors are performing well, and we want to recognize them when they go above and beyond.”

Vehicle Safety Tips

Newport News Shipbuilding Security and the Newport News Police Department provide the following tips for shipbuilders to avoid a vehicle theft or break-in:

- Always lock your automobile and take your keys.
- Make sure all windows are rolled up all the way.
- Do not leave extra or spare keys in your automobile.
- Do not leave valuables in your automobile (whether in plain sight or hidden).
- Do not leave valuables in your trunk (if your automobile is unlocked, a thief can get to your trunk).
- Park your automobile in a lit area.
- Park your automobile in your garage or driveway if possible.
- Never leave your automobile running.
- Install an anti-theft device that is highly visible, hard to defeat, and renders the automobile undriveable. (steering wheel or clutch locks, door lock security plates, anti-theft door lock knobs, etc)
- Do not leave important papers, especially a car title, in your automobile.
- Invest in a tracking device in case your vehicle is stolen.
- Record the serial numbers of aftermarket stereos and other items.
- Engrave your driver's license number on your stereos, speakers and cellular phones.
- Do not leave your garage door opener in plain sight in your automobile.
- Consider a security camera on your property.

Shipbuilders are encouraged to report any suspicious activity at NNS to Security. The emergency number is *911, and the non-emergency number is 380-2222.

Newport News Shipbuilding's Mobile Experience trailer spent two days at Norfolk Naval Shipyard last week. Photo by Matt Hildreth

The event was an opportunity to foster collaboration between the two yards, which already work closely together, according to Kenny Weeks (E83), an on-site Reactor Plant Planning Yard representative for USS Dwight D. Eisenhower (CVN 69).

“Employees from Newport News Shipbuilding are working here inside of Norfolk Naval Shipyard to support availabilities,” he said. “We’re really a big team working together to get these ships back out to sea.”

Attendees included Norfolk Naval Shipyard Commander Capt. Kai Torkelson and his direct reports, leaders and other employees from both Norfolk and Pearl Harbor naval shipyards, U.S. Navy personnel and Reactor Plant Contractor Office (RPCO) officials.

Donny Hoover, who works in the nuclear engineering innovation branch at Norfolk Naval Shipyard, said he saw tangible benefits – including a reduction in injuries and significant cost savings – that could come from the use of digital shipbuilding tools.

“It’s not just about having the coolest, fanciest technology; it’s about what you get when you have that,” he said. “A lot of this stuff is going to pay for itself many times over.”

Weeks said attendees reacted positively. “Our mission was to share our experience and create opportunities to work with their teams to develop products that will enhance the abilities of the entire naval shipbuilding and ship maintenance community,” he said.

MX Trailer Visits Norfolk Naval Shipyard

More than 200 people had the opportunity to tour Newport News Shipbuilding’s Mobile Experience (MX) trailer during a two-day visit to Norfolk Naval Shipyard in Portsmouth last week.
